The Jain Society of Tampa Bay will be celebrating opening of the Jain Temple from Nov. 27 through Nov 30, which is during Thanksgiving weekend. The program includes Pratishtha Sthapana and cultural program in the evening. On Thursday evening, there will be Garba and Raas. Friday and Saturday evening program includes a drama on Parshwanath Bhagavan Janma Mahotsav. Different type of pujas will be performed in the morning in the presence of Jaina scholars.

"This project has been in works for the last eight years and we are excited to have our own facility," said Rupesh Shah, president of the Jain Society. "We have about 100-plus Jain families and this provides us a unique opportunity to get together for lectures and prayers as well as allow us to pass on our culture and heritage to young generation."

The overall project cost has been $1.3 million. "We are thankful of all donors who have contributed significantly to make this project successful," said Shah. "A major donation for the hall has been received from Bharatbhai and Kiniben Shah while land has been donated by Drs. Kiran and Pallavi Patel and we are fortunate to be in right location with the India Cultural Center and Hindu Temple of Florida making us feel like our temple is set up in India and surrounded by open land."

The invitation is open to all community members with registration. Visit <http://www.jainsocietyoftampabay.org/> for more details.
